EUGENIC LAW IN EFFECT

Hygenic Marriage Plan in Wisconsin.

Various Opinions Given on Law
Which is Advocted for Kentucky.

Milwaukee, Dec. 25.—On and after January 1, 1914, men who wish to marry in this State must present certificates of health signed by reputable physicians.

The eugenic law passed at the last session of the Legislature goes into effect on that day, and no even the cleverest lawyers have been able to find any way of avoiding it. It also provides that any person going to another State to marry can not return to Wisconsin within a period of one year unless he presents a physician's certificate. Intent to defraud is punishable with imprisonment
from one to thirty years.

There has already been much discussion of the new law by physicians, clergymen and social workers, in this State. Many approve of it, while others assert that it will work no good.
The medical profession, however, appear to generally regard the statute
with favor.

The law provides that any physician issuing a false certificate shall be deprived of his license to practice,
and any person disclosing the result of an examination by a physician shall be charged with a felony, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to from one to five years in the penitentiary. The law sets forth that the cost for medical examination shall be $2, to be paid by the applicant.

Following are some opinions expressed by leading clergymen and physicians of Milwaukee:

"The statute to become effective in this State on January 1, 1914," said Dr. William Becker, a prominent physician, "which compels male candidates for matrimony to present a certificate of physical and mental health, would, theoretically, be conducive to the betterment of mankind,
if both sexes were equally subjected to the law."

"Viewed in the light of a civil contract, both parties entering into the agreement should share, equally,
in all responsibilities as well as in all privileges of the same. With the man in possession of a certified halo, but in doubt as to the woman's mental and physical status, the woman is lowered to the plane of a quasichatel, and the legal maxim
of 'caveat emptor' becomes applicable.

"A considerable per cent of women bent on marriage are mentally and physically tainted. Is the woman's aptitude for marriage less important than that of the man?"

This was the opinion of the Rev.
H. C. Beale, of the Congregational Church:

"I have grave doubts as to whether this particular law will be of any great advantage. The matter is too acute and the possibility of evasion so great. Besides, it comes perhaps near to the line which separates individual freedom from social control."

"There is likely to be much adverse criticism of such a law," said Dr. Nellie Wentworth Cartill, "and I would not be surprised to hear of its early repeal. The man who is clean will resent a physical examination; the man who is unclear will evade the issue."

"The law in itself is a good one and probably has the support of the entire medical profession, as well as the think-people of other professions."

"That the law may be changed to include women is inevitable. The woman infected in a previous marriage may be a disease carrier and a disease transmitter without her knowledge. What men are ignorant of the possibility of them infecting their mates?"

"All the platitudes that might be written upon by 'rounders' and 'men-about-town.' It will not be objected to by men of clean lives, nor by parents of marriageable daughters."

Dr. William J. Cronyn said:
"I believe it is a wise and maturity law."

"If rigidly enforced, it will go far toward preventing the propagation of serious diseases of the blood, and other local diseases that are a source of so much misery and suffering, and the cause of so many unhappy marriages.

"Witness the result of the recent marriage of a certain deposed monarch and a german princess. The fact to the world."

"The law, recently passed by the legislature, whereby an man desiring to marry, must present a certificate
signed by a reputable physician, showing that he is physically qualified to enter the marriage relation, will for a time, bewilder some people, and it will be some time before all will understand its import," said the Rev.
Perry Millar, superintendent of the Wisconsin Conference. Methodist Episcopal Church.

May Use Kentucky Limestone.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Kentucky limestone may yet be used in the construction of the Lincoln Memorial here to cost $2,000,000. After bidders from Western Kentucky quarries were ruled out two months ago
by the commissioners on the grounds that the contract had already been let, the Attorney General ruled that the Secretary of War and not the commission should let the contract. The commissioners meet today to consider asking new bids.

500 Lives Lost.

Sydney, New South Wales, Dec. 22.— Incoming steamers bring terrible details of the recent volcanic eruptions
on the Island of Ambrym, in the New Hebrides group, in which 500 natives lost their lives. Witnesses of the disturbance describe it as having been so sudden and violent that they expected to see the whole western side of the island disappear.

UNION HATTERS

MUST PAY BIG SUM

Danbury Hatters Case Again Decided in Favor of Company.

New York, Dec. 19.—The United States Court of Appeals yesterday decided the famous Danbury Hatters case in favor of D. E. Lowe & Co., plaintiff, and against the United Hatters
of North America. The court affirmed a judgment in favor of Lowe, and against the hatters' organization for $252,130.

With interest and costs the judgment now amounts to $272,000. At the first trial in 1908, the plaintiff obtained a judgment for $222,240. Sustaining the second judgment, Judge Coxe declared that it was no longer debatable "that the anti-trust act is applicable to such combinations as are alleged in the complaint," and that the act made no distinctions between classes of combinations or individuals.

The court held that it had been clearly established that the plaintiff
was engaged in an interstate business and that the defendants are members of a trades union and affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, "one of the objects of the latter organization being to assist its members in an 'affiliative boycott,' and with financial help in the event of strike or lockout."

Alton B. Parker, counsel for the defendants, announced that the case would probably be taken to the United States Supreme Court for review.

Ass'tant Postmasters Out of Civ- il Service.

Washington, Dec. 20.—All assistant postmasters will be exempted from the civil service under the Post-office Appropriation Bill completed today by the House Committee on Post-offices and to be reported immediately after the holiday recess.
The Democrats of the committee voted to put into the measure a provision substantially similar to the one in the Sundry Civil Bill, under which deputy collectors and deputy marshals
were exempted from civil service.

The bill carries approximately $302, 000,000, a cut of about $3,000,000 from the estimates submitted by the Postoffice Department.

TUBERCULOSIS HEAD TENDERS RESIGNATION

Dr. Farrand Will Become President of University

Colorado.

JOHN W. LEWIS DIES IN TEXAS

Former Congressman from the Fourth District Expires at Home of Daughter.

New York, Dec. 22.—Dr. Living-ton Farrand, who for nearly ten years has been the executive secretary of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, has severed his connection with that organization to become the president of the University of Colorado, according to an announcement made from the association's headquarters here last night.

Dr. Farrand has probably done more for the promotion of the organized anti-tuberculosis movement
in the United States than any other single individual in the entire country.
When the executive office of The National Association was opened in 1904, under his direction, there were less than 20 associations and committees for the prevention of tuberculosis in the United States, and of these not more than five were in any way actively at work. Under Dr. Farrand's direction, the scope of the anti-tuberculosis movement has expanded until today there are over 1,200 special tuberculosis societies and committees in this country alone, one or more in almost every state, city and town of any prominence. The institutional growth in this field has also expanded from 115
scattered and poorly equipped sanatoria to nearly 600 such institutions with a bed capacity of over 35,000
and besides there are over 400 dispensaries and clinics for tuberculosis as against less than 15 when no
open air schools or fresh air classes
in 1905 but today there are over 200,
and the number is growing daily.
Ten years ago tuberculosis was little understood or feared by most people in the United States; today the educational campaign directed by the National Association has permeated every rank of society and the dangers and methods of prevention of this disease are even being taught in the public schools of scores of cities. Under Dr. Farrand's direction the anti-tuberculosis campaign in the United States has become the most thoroughly organized movement of its kind in the world.

In 1876 he made an unsuccessful race for Congress. From 1878 to 1881 he was a member of the Republican State Central Committee and chairman in 1887. In 1889 he was chairman of the Republican State Convention,
and the same year was a delegate to the Republican National Convention, and was one of the famous 306 who voted for Gen. Grant from first to last, while in both 1884 and 1888 he was delegate-at-large to the National Convention of his party.
In 1894 Mr. Lewis defeated A. B.
Montgomery for Congress, he being the only Republican who ever represented the Fourth district. While he was in Congress only one term, he took high rank and was a member of the Judiciary Committee. Four years ago Mr. Lewis was defeated by Judge I. H. Thurman for Circuit Judge of this district.

In 1877 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Phillips, of Lebanon, and to this union one child was born,
Mrs. Fred Mangat.

The body has been brought to Kentucky for burial.

Barbers Denounce the Mustache Fad.

New York, Dec. 22.—Mustaches from an economic point of view were discussed by the boss barbers of Harlem at a meeting last night. The fad of raising the upper lip adornaments was condemned and the recent royal comment of the Kaiser that Germans must not shave off their mustaches and thereby become effeminate, was blamed for the waste of four minutes—the extra time required, it was said—to shave around the edges of a mustache.

gressive parties in this (Marion)

New Corn Moving in Western Kentucky.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 23.—The corn shipping season has begun at Mervin, La Center and Barlow and during the last few days it is estimated that 200 carloads of corn have been shipped from those points. Corn is bringing fancy prices and the farmers, who have had the grain stored for several months, are selling as rapidly as they can haul it to the markets. The corn and tobacco seasons coming at the same time have produced a large sum of money in circulation in this section.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 23.—The bodies

on the bank of a small stream in the suburbs of Louisville, where their automobile dashed through a bridge
last night, pinning them fast.

residents of these counties at Hazelwood Sanatorium. In Winchester Paris, Georgetown, Danville, and probably in other places, visiting nurses will probably be employed for the first time to work in cooperation with the Kentucky Tuberculosis Commission. The rest of the funds will be taken in trust by the Commission for the extension of the work in various places, either through organization of visiting nursing associations, or the establishment of open

ARE HEDGING ON CAMPAIGN PROMISES

Free-Traders Beginning to Doubt Whether they Have Decreased
the Cost of Living.

The Democratic national platform
goes right to the bat on the "high cost of living," alleges that it is due mainly to the horrid Republican tariff and declares that no remedy is possible "until import duties on the necessaries of life are materially reduced," which the Democrats promised to do quick.

Of the 477 pages of the Democratic campaign handbook of 1912 the first 176 pages are devoted to the exploitation of the alleged awful results of the Republican tariff and a description of the glorious times of cheap living for everybody which would arrive when a triumphant Democracy shall have got in its work
on the Ta...

Well, the Democrats got possession of the Ta... the Democratic tariff has been a legal force for several weeks, and has been practically effective since midsummer, and instead of the promised cheap living which we should have been enjoying by this time there comes an apparently inspired wall from the seats of the mighty at Washington,
declaring that "Thanksgiving dinner
this year was the most expensive meal the American people have eaten
in many a long day.

And so say we all of us.

It is fair to say that the Democrats had justification in precedent for their prediction, for the Wilson
bill, which was then the latest Democratic effort in that line, had been immediately followed by the very lowest cost of living that we had experienced for many a year.

When the country had enough of it the restoration of a Republican protective tariff was immediately followed by an increase in the price of "necessities," to be sure,
and also by the general ability to pay the increased price and lay by a lot of money besides.

And this condition continued, although with the rising prices which inevitably accompany great prosperity—a prosperity which continued until the result of the election of 1912
was apparent.

The effects of the Democratic tariff are as yet not fully apparent. We should begin to understand the situation about next midsummer. It is improbable that the country will like them any better than it liked the results of the tariff of 1912. See

Fran Cisco Chronicle.

MANY POISONING WOODS ARE FOUND

Some Trees Are Dangerous and Cause Severe Skin Eruptions.

Nettles, poison ivy and poison sumac are by no means the only plants which have a poisonous effect on the human skin. Poisonous substances exist in many trees, and even after they have been cut and sawed a sufficient quantity of the poison remains in the lumber so that workmen who handle it are liable to infection.

Amber wood is impregnated with a powerful poison, according to Dr. Hiltz Graf, who has been investigating the subject for the German Botanical Society.

Two different kinds of wood are included under the term amberwood—the genuine East Indian or Asiatic satinwood or amberwood. The two are quite different in external appearance. Nestler succeeded in extracting the active substance only from the latter. This is a stearinlike substance soluble only in ether. A small quantity of it placed in contact with the skin of the underarm, in the course of about five hours produced a tense swollen yellowish blister surrounded by a red area of inflammation. After the bursting of the blister an ulcer remained, which required four weeks to heal.

What is known as "cocobolo" wood contains a poisonous substance easily soluble in alcohol and benzol, less so in water. It is apparently an ethereal oil. The placing of fine sawdust of this wood on the moist skin causes first a violent smarting. Following this, red spots or pimples appear, accompanied by redness and inflammation of that part of skin, followed by scaling.

Similar phenomena are caused by the plant Cortusa Matthioli, but they are even stronger, since blisters are produced. Touching the plants is enough to cause irritation, and the infection may be transmitted to other persons by hands so infected.

The bearers of the irritating substance in this case are gland-hairs, as in the case of the primrose. This substance is a crystallizable sap which can be extracted from gland-hairs.

The sawdust of the Mexican blue-gum is harmful when the skin is especially sensitive from some other cause. A workingman who was suffering from tuberculosis, and who later died from it, was attacked after splitting this lumber, by an eruption of the underarm which forced him to stop work. Others who did similar labor for years had no ill-effects. In his case the tuberculosis may have created the disposition.

As a result of his investigation, Dr. Graf urges all cabinetmakers who work in satinwood, and gardeners who grow poisonous plants, to protect their hands, arms and head from direct contact with the wood, sawdust, or injured portions of the plants. A visitor to the Berlin Botanical Gardens recently brought suit for damages for injuries which he alleged he had suffered on account of his near proximity to a poisonous sumac, which is on exhibition in the gardens. But the suit was lost for the directors of the gardens proved conclusively that for poisoning to occur the plant must be injured and the portion brought into direct contact with the skin.

A CHAIN OF FAME.

The Barrier Washington Erected Across the Hudson.

ARNOLD REMOVED ONE LINK.

Still the Monster Cable, In Spite of the Traitor's Act, Served Its Purpose and Blocked the Progress of the British Ships Up the River.

Somewhere in the bed of the Hudson river just off of West Point lies buried the larger part of a great iron chain, one of several ordered by General Washington during the Revolution to be constructed to prevent the enemy from ascending certain rivers to accomplish strategic points of vantage.

The British were making strenuous efforts to get hold of the Hudson in order to keep free communication with Canada by the additional channels of the St. Lawrence and Lake Champlain, and so it was determined to obstruct the Hudson by a great chain crossing from Fort Montgomery to Anthony's Nose.

But this was a failure. The chain parted within a week after it had been stretched, and, although subsequently raised and again placed, it was destroyed by the British.

Finally Washington decided to forge another and obstruct the river between West Point and Constitution island, for here there was an abrupt change of course, and a heavy tide reduced the speed of any ship encountering it. Besides the channel was 300 feet narrow at this crossing.

The forging of a chain such as was contemplated was then no small undertaking. Requests were secretly sent to various iron companies, and among the bids the most favorable came from the Sterling Iron Works, situated in one of the most beautiful regions of the east, now within the fashionable domains of Tuxedo Park.

It was originally organized by Lord Sterling in 1751, a well known officer in the Revolutionary army, and continued in operation for more than a hundred years, meanwhile passing into the possession of Abel Noble, who married a niece of Peter Townsend and who now in association with the latter increased the capacity of the works which eventually came into the entire possession of Peter Townsend, a patriot and filled with the spirit of the time.

He finally obtained a few Welsh miners from Pennsylvania for the heavy handling in the forging and a number of men from Connecticut with their teams to do the hauling, and when the chain was ready it was drawn over the rough mountainous roads and through forests that had to be purposedly cut in many places and so on to New Windsor, the nearest river point, and towed to West Point.

It was a strenuous undertaking from the very start. Each link weighed 300 pounds, was two feet in length and two and a quarter inches square, and each 100 feet was secured by a swivel, a twisting link, and at every thousand feet there was a clevis. The whole of this weighed 185 tons. When it was stretched across from West Point to Constitution island it was buoyed up by large sixteen foot logs, and these were in turn held in place by the anchors.

The British made no specific attack on this then invincible obstacle, for it must be remembered that in those days there was no dynamite nor torpedoes, and none of the enemy's prows would have pushed their way through such a barrier.

Although the British did not succeed in passing the big Hudson river chain, the American traitor Arnold gave it his particular attention and removed a link of it under the pretense of having it repaired for weakness at a nearby smithy. He wrote to Major Andre that it would not be replaced until the forts were surrendered to the British. But somehow the chain stood for its purpose, and Sir Henry Clinton did not attempt to relieve Burgoyne.

Parts of this celebrated chain are to be seen among various historical curios of prominent societies. A number of years ago Mayor Hewitt of New York, then the owner of a mine near the Sterling properties, became interested in finding out the whereabouts of the remaining portions of the chain. A large part of it lies at the bottom of the river, about thirty tons were in various possessions, and at West Point there are thirteen links, and a staple placed near the spot where the chain was anchored and a plate tells of the date and place of forging.—Boston Herald.

No Primaries For Her.

"Are you going to the primaries tonight, Ethelinda?" asked the husband of his suffragette wife.

"Indeed I am not," replied the lady. "Do you suppose that after I have attended the postgraduate courses in political science for two years I'm going to waste my time on those primary classes? I guess not! They're good enough for you men, but we women have progressed beyond that!"—Harper's Weekly.

Two Failures.

"I married for beauty alone," said a presumably happy benedict to an old chum. "And yet you remind me of a friend of mine who married for money," was the rejoinder. "How's that?" "He didn't get it," said the chum sarcastically.

The preservation of health is a duty we seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical morality.—Spencer.

HE WAS A GOOD SOLDIER.

And His Loss Was Deplored by Pas. I., the Half Mad Czar.

In Walewski's life of Paul I., the half mad son of Catherine the Great, occurs the following anecdote illustrative of the workings of the disorganized mind. It seems that in a report on military affairs submitted to the Emperor Paul the final syllable kij of the Russian word for corset or ensign was carried over from one page to another.

The emperor took it for a proper name, and, moved by a caprice, he gave orders that Ensign kij should be promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. He saw an expression of embarrassment and disappointment on the faces of the staff, who did not dare to explain his error; so the next day he promoted the Lieutenant of the day before to the rank of captain and some days later to that of colonel, demanding that the officer should be presented to him at once. There was consternation everywhere. The offices were turned upside down in search of the imaginary kij.

A subaltern of the name or something like it was found in one of the regiments quartered on the Don. He was sent for, but Paul grew impatient, and in the end he had to be told that kij had been carried off suddenly by a stroke.

"That is a pity," observed the czar. "He was a good soldier."

Tariff Results in Mill Towns.

The editor of a newspaper published at Bristol, Pa., has given his readers a graphic statement of the effect of the Tariff upon the industries in his town. He does not argue the Tariff question from a theoretical standpoint, but says bluntly that the Underwood bill already has affected Bristol's mill interests. By the first of the year, when the new textile schedules go into effect, he says, the indications of the havoc the bill will work are sure to be apparent to everyone.

Shorter hours will mean less pay and the merchant will be hit hard because collections will be more difficult and longer credit must be given the wage earner. He tells the shoe-merchant, haberdasher, butcher and grocer what they already know and fear—that the question which looms up large upon the horizon is the pay envelope. The goods made abroad and sold here displace just so much of the domestic products. The money paid for goods made here goes abroad and never comes back. The money paid for goods made here goes to the American wage earner and by him is paid for living expenses to the local merchant.

DINING ON SHIPBOARD.

Different Now From What It Was
When Dickens Visited Us.

When Dickens came over to America some seventy odd years ago there was one large table in the dining room for the passengers. The first officer sat at the head, carving the turkey with all the grace he could command between tucks of the good ship, trusting to Providence that the gravy would not slop over. The passengers sent their plates along the line and waited for their helpings.

Today the dining room of a large ship looks like the dining room of a fine hotel. It is just as exquisitely appointed and has every good thing to eat that can be found on land. In fact, one of the new ships has a restaurant named after a famous one in New York, and the two keep in touch by wireless so that the menus, day by day, are the same. Think of having your dinner arranged by wireless—your macaroni by Marconi!

The dining room is divided up into a number of small tables, so that you can have your own party, with only half a dozen of you, with your own waiter, instead of sitting at a long table and passing your plate, as Dickens did.

The development of the wonders of cold storage has done more than any other one thing to make life on the ocean wave one long round of joy. Cold storage gives you the best in the world to eat and every day of the year. A world traveler was telling me the other day that he had eaten grapefruit every morning all around the world. The ship on which he sailed put in a large amount of ice cream made in New York, and 110 days later, when he arrived in San Francisco, he was still eating New York ice cream—Harold Christie in Leslie's.

ROBING THE BRIDE.

Early Saxon Customs and the Advent of the Flowing Veil.

In the old days, as now, the bride generally dressed in white. From early Saxon times down to the eighteenth century a bride of the poorer classes came to the wedding arrayed in a plain white robe as a public warning that since she brought nothing to the marriage her husband was not responsible for her debts.

Brides soon began to add some little touch of color. Blue was for constancy and green for youth, but in some places these might not be used because of feuds between families having these tints in their liveries. Yellow might not be worn, as it stood for jealousy; golden might not, as it meant avarice.

The Anglo-Saxon bride went to the wedding with her hair hanging loose as a sign of freedom, but upon reaching her new home immediately bound it up as a sign of submission. In the days of Shakespeare the veil began to take the place of the flowing tresses, but this, however, was not original with the British, for centuries earlier the Roman and Hebrew brides had worn yellow veils, while the early Christians of southern Europe had enveloped both man and wife in one large cloth.

Whatever was lacking, however, in gorgeness of dress was compensated among all the nations by the profusion of flowers chosen for their significance.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Herculaneum and Pompeii.

Pompeii was buried in ashes or light scoria, while Herculaneum was entombed in lava, which, after cooling, hardened into a material of the consistency of marble, and we thus have the explanation of the fact that while the first city has long been unearthed the latter is still largely covered with its ancient lava shroud. Excavations are constantly going on at Herculaneum, and the work will in all probability continue to the finish, but it is not likely that any especially important results will accrue, since the life of the two cities was practically the same.—New York American.

Rational Love.

"The rational rather than the romantic view of marriage is the one most in favor with the young people of the twentieth century," said a well known eugenics expert in an address in Cleveland.

"The rational view will make for happier marriages. And this rational view is beautifully illustrated in two questions—a little dialogue—running thus: 'Will you always love me?' 'Will you always be lovable?'"—New York Tribune.

Antiquity of the Census.

The idea of the census is almost as old as history itself. King Amasis of Egypt took a census of his people 500 years before Christ. The Athenian colony established a census for the purpose of facilitating taxation. We learn that about 443 B. C. Servius Julius took a census of Rome. During the chaos of the dark ages the census dropped into oblivion, but was revived again about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Discretion.

"Now, Mike, you must forgive your enemies."

"Ugh!"

"Do you object to that?"

"Not altogether. There's some of 'em I might as well forgive. I ain't big enough to lick 'em."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WOMEN ON HORSEBACK.

They Cut a Queer Figure Before Side-saddles Were Invented.

Before Queen Catherine de Medicis started the fashion of sidesaddles by having a board slung on the left side of her horse to support her feet all poor women rode on a pillion behind a man. All women of the better class rode astride.

A lady to prepare for riding bent forward and took hold of the lower hem of the back of her dress skirt, drew it through between her legs and wrapped her skirts around her legs down to her knees, then folded the rest of her skirts across the front of her person.

Then she drew on a pair of large trousers, the legs of which ended just below the knees, where they were sewed to the tops of a pair of clumsy riding boots. The upper part of the trousers was open in front, and the flaps folded across the person and fastened by a band around the waist. A hood was worn on the head, and a mask protected the face from sun and weather. She rode on a man's saddle and wore spurs and carried a quirt riding whip looped on the right wrist. The same style and kind of quirks is now used by our western cowboys and plains Indians and was formerly carried by the Cossacks.

A lady in riding costume, whether on foot or on horseback, was anything but a graceful figure.

Our great-grandmothers rode on sidesaddles, but their great-great-grandmothers rode astride if they belonged to the gentry class.

Our plains Indian women, even when they changed their buckskin skirts that came to the knee and their buckskin leggings for the long calico skirt of white women, always rode astride.—Washington Post.

THEY DIDN'T MIND DIRT.

In the Days When Clothes Were Dyed, but Never Washed.

In the matter of the washing of clothes, not to say the washing of themselves, our ancestors were a trifle lax. The laundress of the twelfth century must have held a position which was practically a sinecure, while it seems within the bounds of possibility that in those days she did not exist at all. There were, insooth, few garments which would stand washing, and the dyer was driving a brisk trade before the laundress was even thought of. A little dye must indeed have covered a multitude of spots.

In the days of the Tudors and Stuarts washing was a trifle more in evidence than formerly, but those articles which were permitted to find their way into the "buck pan"—as the washing tub used to be called—were few and far between. The wealthy of the middle ages got over the difficulty of obtaining clean underclothing with primitive simplicity by not wearing any, while the lower orders wore coarse woolen garments that would no doubt have "shrunk in the wash." To prevent any casualty of the kind they remained unwashed.

Velvets, taffetas and richly dyed silks, such as those worn by the nobility and gentry, could not, of course, be washed, and should any person of high degree be the possessor of a linen shirt it was a thing which was carefully made known to all his friends and relatives as being extremely lame and a fit subject for congratulation, but washed it never was for fear of injuring its pristine beauty.—London Tatler.

Witchcraft.

In many parts of the world—Greece, for instance—the believer in witchcraft still gets hold, by hook or by crook, of hair, nail parings and so forth from an enemy's head and hands and burns, buries or does something else with them in order to entail unpleasant consequences upon that enemy. And universal folklore reveals the concern of savages to dispose of their own hair and nail clippings to prevent an enemy from getting at them. Australian native girls, having had a lock of hair stolen from them, expected speedy death as a certainty.—London Telegraph.

Virtues of the Nurse.

Sir William Osler in a lecture at Johns Hopkins training school named the seven virtues of the nurse: "Tact, without which no woman can be successful and her chief protection in the mechanism of life; tidiness, it being the primary duty of a woman to look well; tactfulness, which should be cultivated as a gift; sympathy, gentleness, the birthright of a nurse; cheerfulness and charity, the last and greatest of all."

Vague.

"I didn't exactly know how to take the missis this morning," said the lady's maid to the cook.

"What did she say?"

"When I remarked that I was afraid her complexion could not be improved by cold cream she told me I needn't rub it in."—Baltimore American.

Hartford River.....123

FRIDAY DECEMBER 26.

It is about time to frame up those new year resolutions.

Will some one please tell us what has become of Harry Thaw and John Lind.

Whenever the Progressive and Republican rank and file get ready to merge, they will merge, no matter what the leaders do or say.

Some Indian weather prophets have predicted no winter. We would as soon have their forecast as those of the Weather Bureau, if they come true.

From what the Courier-Journal says the Democrats made a very poor selection when they nominated for Secretary of State in Kentucky in 1911.

A Philadelphia girl is suing for $5,000 apiece for two kisses a man took from her when she wasn't looking. The price of living is still going up.

The Currency bill has at last been passed by Congress. It is expected to give us plenty of money with which to purchase the things made cheap by the Tariff bill.

We hope all of our readers had a merry Christmas, and that your first New Year resolution will be to renew your subscription to The Hartford Republican at your earliest convenience.

Is it to be made a capital offense to criticize the Wilson administration, or the members of the cabinet? If so, by this time next year fully two thirds of the people will have to be sent to the gibbet.

Members of the army and navy, who belong to a fun making society, called the Carabobs, are to be court-martialed, or at least strictly dealt with because they made fun of the Wilson policies at their annual dinner at Washington recently. Go tell it to Huerta.

In another column we record the death of Hon. John W. Lewis, who represented this district in Congress from 1895 to 1897, having been elected in the Republican landslide of 1894, and who enjoyed the distinction of being the only Republican who ever succeeded in carrying the district. Mr. Lewis died at Springfield, Washington county, Kentucky, was very popular and had a large law practice. For many years he had not been active in politics, owing to his advanced age.

Over in Indiana while the Progressive and Republican leaders are speaking out against getting together, the boys in the trenches, who are beginning to feel the pinch of the Wilson administration are holding meetings and appointing committees to arrange for union, and they are the ones who do the voting. When conditions get right, the two wings will get together, just like the old woman's hen, which she said would "set", when she got ready to set, if she had to stand up and "set".

Our Democratic friends after having played in the role of calamity howlers for the past twenty years pretend now to be very much perturbed because some Republicans and Progressives have predicted that their policies will bring ruin upon the country. How often have we heard such predictions from Democratic orators from one end of the land to the other, when Republican policies were being put into operation. Think of the tons of literature and the oceans of speeches containing prophecies of dire disaster, which were launched by the Democrats against the McKinley Tariff law some years ago. Now all is changed, and it is the other, on which is gored.

Hon. Ben Johnson, Congressman from this district, is evidently doing something for the common people, as a member of the lower house of Congress. As Chairman of the District of Columbia committee, he has been untiring in his efforts to ferret out graft in the municipal government of Washington City, and to correct inequalities in taxation. For this he has been the target of abuse by certain interests in the city, which have been in the habit of profiting from year to year, from the large appropriations made by Congress to maintain the city government. Our Congressman has our sympathy and support in what we believe to be an effort upon his part to do faithful service for his constituents. We say this for him in a sense of fairness, notwithstanding he belongs to an opposite political party, and while we differ from him in some of his governmental policies, yet we are free to say that he has made a painstaking and industrious member of the lower house, and his services have been equal in worth to any man sent from Kentucky for many years.

THE PROPOSED AMALGAMATION.

Last week the Republican National Committee met in Washington City for the purpose of laying plans which would result in a reunion of the elements in the Republican party, which had been separated by the 1912 Chicago convention. It was heralded far and wide that a convention was to be called to meet in 1914 at which the party would take a stand upon many new matters which are now before the country, in addition to regulating the representation at future conventions and taking out of the hands of the National Committee the power to thwart the people in their choice of presidential candidates. After considerable discussion pro and con, and a two days session the committee voted down the convention proposition, and put forth a plan to reduce the Southern representation, and to recognize presidential primaries in states where primaries have been provided for presidential nominations and to suffer the choice for these delegates to be placed upon the temporary roll of the convention, without interference from the National Committee.

While this is a material modification of the iron clad rules of the committee in the interest of the rank and file of the party, it remains to be seen whether or not this arrangement will be sufficient to bring about a union of the Progressives and Republicans. The scheme has been denounced by such leaders as George W. Perkins, Senator Beveridge, and others as a well thought out plan to induce persons who have been remaining out of the old party to return to the fold with a final battle. It is believed that the getting together of the two elements will depend largely upon the success or failure of the Wilson administration. If the country suffers in consequence of the new Tariff law, to currency legislation, etc., or both, the rank and file will get together, no matter what the leaders do or say. In other words hunger and hard times will do more to bring about the amalgamation of the Progressives and Republicans than all the committee meetings or eloquent speeches could do in many months. If upon the other hand, the Wilson administration should be a success matters are likely to drag along between the Progressives and Republicans, under separate shelters, for several years, but eventually there will be only two great parties in this country, the conservative and the radical.

A Woman's National Party.

In most of the states where women have been given the ballot they have dropped naturally into the ranks of the existing political parties. But Kansas women wish to be different. They want a party for women only, separate and distinct from those set up by the men, and they have initiated a movement to form such a feminist political body, with its own rules and tenets and ambitions.

It is quite easy to see what this might mean if the other states joined in the plan. As these, one by one came under the equal suffrage "wire", the "woman's party" would be gradually swelled until it became a menace to the man-power of the country. In a spirit of self protection, men would wipe out their own party lines to make common cause against the new and "un"-common peril. Such a spectacular condition of affairs is too ridiculous to contemplate except in the nature of a huge joke.

Who would write the platform for a specialized "woman's party"? What would be its planks and principles? Would its constitution include angel cake recipes with conflicting amendments; and would its by-laws set up bridge whist rules and discriminating directions on how to dance the tango?

The question might be asked: "What is the matter with Kansas women?" And verily the answer would be that they have lost not only their political bearings but, far worse than that, they have lost their sense of humor.

Dismissed.

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 22.—The court today dismissed the bribery charge against Clarence Darrow, the labor lawyer, on the motion of District Attorney F. D. Richardson, who said Darrow's conviction for bribing Justice Bain was doubtful. In the trial for bribing Bain, the jury disagreed.

LET US HAVE PROGRESS JOINED WITH PROSPERITY

Free-Trade Policy Responsible for Shadow of Depression That Hangs Over Business.

President Wilson says: "There is but one cloud upon our horizon," and describes that cloud as our trouble with Mexico. Mr. Wilson evidently is not an expert in political meteorology.

There is, perhaps, only one cloud on the distant horizon, but there are several very threatening clouds hanging immediately overhead, and casting a very heavy shadow upon the business interests of this country and upon the general prosperity of the producing classes. This heavy shadow, with a prospect even of a serious storm, is due to the President's exceedingly obstinate attitude in regard to the modifications of the Tariff.

The President is one of those men to whom success gives hallucinations. He is convinced that he is the direct representative of the Almighty on earth, and that, being in more immediate contact with mundane affairs, his knowledge of them is, perhaps, a little superior to that of the Almighty.

This conviction is not uncommon among men whose sudden rise to power is as incomprehensible to them as it is to the rest of the community. Not only politicians have this obsession, but business men also who attain unusual success or important position too rapidly.

A conspicuous example of this hallucination was given by George F. Baer, of the Reading Railroad, with his avowed inspiration and his arrogant action by "Divine right."

Vanity of this kind would be harmless enough if they did not so often lead men to become inaccessible to facts and impervious to reason, and if they did not so often persuade men that their own fallible opinions were direct inspirations from on high, not to be modified or ameliorated by the opinions of other men or the actual conditions which confront them.

The clouds which now hang menacingly overhead and threaten the prosperity of the nation could have been dissipated if Mr. Wilson had taken a broader and more liberal view in his policies of Tariff reduction.

He should have realized that Tariff reduction, however necessary for the benefit of the consumers, must fall more or less heavily and disastrously upon the producers of the country.

He should have appreciated the necessity of compensating these American producers for the markets which they would lose here at home by opening to them markets which he could easily have secured for them abroad.

The reduction of our Tariff barrier allows our markets to be invaded by foreign products, and our producers to be deprived of a greater or less proportion of our American markets.

If a policy of our Tariff barrier allows our markets to be invaded by foreign products, and our producers to be deprived of a greater or less proportion of our American markets.

If a policy of reciprocity had accompanied the policy of Tariff reduction, the markets of foreign nations would have been reciprocally opened to the products of our American manufacturers and producers. The advantages gained in these foreign markets.

It is quite easy to see what this might mean if the other states joined in the plan. As these, one by one came under the equal suffrage "wire", the "woman's party" would be gradually swelled until it became a menace to the man-power of the country.

In a spirit of self protection, men would wipe out their own party lines to make common cause against the new and "un"-common peril. Such a spectacular condition of affairs is too ridiculous to contemplate except in the nature of a huge joke.

Who would write the platform for a specialized "woman's party"? What would be its planks and principles? Would its constitution include angel cake recipes with conflicting amendments; and would its by-laws set up bridge whist rules and discriminating directions on how to dance the tango?

The question might be asked: "What is the matter with Kansas women?" And verily the answer would be that they have lost not only their political bearings but, far worse than that, they have lost their sense of humor.

W. E. ELLIS

The Produce Merchant

HARTFORD, - KENTUCKY

kets would have compensated our producers, and, perhaps, more than compensated, for the loss of part of their home market.

Mr. Wilson should realize that the word "producers" does not mean only the big business men who conduct manufacturers, but the workingmen, who are the partners in this production, and the farmers, who are the most important producers of all.

However desirable it might have been to benefit the consumers, it was certainly as desirable, or even more desirable, to benefit the producers in this country. The greatness of this country and the wealth of this country are due, not to what we consume, but to what we produce.

The increase in the creation of wealth depends in great measure upon proper encouragement to production, and the distribution of wealth in good prices to farmers and good wages to workingmen is obviously dependent in the first instance upon the creation of wealth through profitable production.

Profits on production depend largely on the extent and excellence of available markets, and any sort of ordinary business intelligence or political intelligence ought to have observed the wisdom of increasing and improving the markets for American products.

In fact, the only kind of mind that would not see the practical and sentimental, the material and human advantage of such a policy would be that type which believes itself to be the medium for the direct transmission of Divine instructions.

It is certainly not compatible with any moral obligations to consider the material welfare of a country and the financial prosperity of the individual citizens.

The material prosperity of the people is a matter worthy of attention and consideration of any Administration, but particularly of a Democratic Administration, and Mr. Wilson's policies, no matter how inspired he may believe them, should be executed with due regard for the welfare of the nation and of the citizens.

Indeed, it would be well if Mr. Wilson could realize that no one man is doing God's work on earth, but that all men are doing it, in the place and with the power that God has allotted them, that the moral and material interests of all are rightfully to be considered and conserved.

The National Primary and the South.

Looking further into President Wilson's recommendation of a national primary to select candidates for president and the result of such a policy upon southern political power and influence, we ascertain some interesting facts.

The Old South—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee—had in 1910 a total population of 22,400,934, or 24.3 per cent of the total population.

In the electoral college of 1912 these states cast 126 votes, or 23.7 per cent of the whole.

In the Baltimore convention they possessed 23.7 per cent of the voting strength of the states.

In the election of November, 1912, these 11 states of the Old South polled a total vote of 1,542,855, or 10.3 per cent of the whole.

In the election of 1912 the single State of New York—population 9,113,273, 10 per cent of all, electoral vote 45, convention vote 90—cast 1,587,982 or 10.5 of the total.

In other words, New York, with 10 per cent of the total population, less than 8.3 per cent of the electoral vote, the same proportion of the convention vote, cast 45,000 more votes than the 11 states of the Old South.

Without regard to party considerations at all, therefore, the national primary would reduce the power of the south in the nomination of presidents from 23.7 per cent to 10.3 per cent, or less than the single State of New York.

From the Democratic standpoint, the change would be even more radical. The south is the backbone of the Democracy. Going back to 1908, when the fight was between the two old parties, and the Democratic candidate received a larger vote than Mr. Wilson received last year, the 11 states mentioned above gave the ticket all the electoral votes it received, save 42 from the states of Colorado, Kentucky, Nevada, Nebraska, Maryland and Oklahoma.

And yet the states of New York and Ohio, one of which went Democratic for president last year for the

Mrs. Wilson of Nashville, Tenn., is famed the world over for her wonderfully delicious cakes. They are shipped to all parts of the globe for special affairs where the best of Cakes are demanded.

This year, as in former years, Mrs. Wilson enjoys the distinction of making the President's Christmas Cake, using Calumet Baking Powder.

Mrs. Wilson's Baking Motto is: "To have complete success with no failures, care should be used in selection of Baking Powder."

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Some little time ago I made a careful study and investigation of the baking powder subject and I feel fully repaid. I am firmly convinced from the results I have received that there is no baking powder to equal Calumet for wholesomeness and economy, and I also recommend Calumet Baking Powder for its never failing results.

first time in 20 years and the other for the first time since the Civil War, cast more Democratic votes than the 11 states of the Old South.

If, therefore, the national primary election law is enacted, and the Republican party becomes reunited, we will have in all likelihood the spectacle of the Democrats of two states—at best doubtful—exercising more power and influence in Democratic councils than the old southern group that has dominated the integrity of the Democratic party in all the violence it has encountered for so many years of patient, waiting and unwavering faith. We ask the consideration of this matter by the people of the south Houston Post.

Considerable excitement was aroused in our little town Christmas eve by an assault which was made upon town Marshal Stevens, by John Daniel, who lives a few miles East of Hartford. It seems that Charlie Burton and some other boys had been in a "scrap", and that Marshal Stevens sought out Daniel to learn the particulars. Daniel thought he was about to be arrested and offered resistance. His brother took a hand and for a moment they overpowered the Marshal, and while one of them held him the other beat him about the head with some instrument, inflicting painful wounds, which are in no wise dangerous. The Marshal made a game stand and was setting the better of his assailants when Sheriff T. H. Black arrived upon the scene, when Daniel was placed under arrest and taken before Police Judge Crowe, who we are informed, refused to take any action in the matter, and he was then taken before County Judge Wedding, and gave bond for his appearance at court. Considerable feeling was manifested upon the part of the citizens who consider that the Marshal was assaulted without cause while in line of duty, and but for cool heads much worse trouble might have followed.

WILL ABOLISH WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL

Farm and Family Monthly To Take Its Place First of Year.

With the issue of the Weekly Courier-Journal of December 31, 1913, that publication will be merged into a monthly paper, to be called "Farm and Family," the first number of which will appear about the middle of January. The day of the political weekly has passed, but there is, unquestionably, a demand in Kentucky, the South and the Southwest for an up-to-date magazine embracing all matters of interest to the farm and the family. "Farm and Family" will be a publication devoted to agriculture, education, good roads and the family, and it will cover these subjects as ably and completely as a modern organization equipped with every means of gathering information and intelligently editing same can possibly do. Mechanically it will have every facility known to modern invention. The editor will be Mr. James Speed, well and widely known in connection with the movement for betterment in agricultural and educational circles in Kentucky and the South.

Naturally the magazine will have these departments which are usually seen in rural magazines; but there will be others which have been generally overlooked. For instance, it will be the policy of "Farm and Family" to devote some space in each issue to the Rural School. There will be no effort to theorize or discuss the school question from the teacher's viewpoint; but simply to learn where in the Southland there is a school that is really doing things that are of vital importance to the community and give the story to the readers.

The evolution of the Weekly Courier-Journal into "Farm and Family" is in accord with the progressive development of the times. Twenty years ago the farmer depended on his weekly edition of the city daily for the news of the world. But to-day he is not content to wait a week for his news of the world any more than his easy-going neighbor, recorded by Josh Billings, is content to sit and wait for the cow to back up to be milked. Better roads, better transportation facilities, rural free delivery, to say nothing of other conditions which are revolutionizing country life, have changed all that.

The modern farmer is fast coming to demand his daily newspaper, and the rapid extension and improvement of the postal service have made it possible to satisfy that demand. Having his daily newspaper, he no longer needs a political weekly, but he does need a medium of information and stimulation, more specialized than his daily can give him, within the lines of his own vocation and environment, through which he may keep abreast with all that intelligent effort is doing in improving agricultural methods and results and bettering the social conditions of rural life. He does need a medium through which he may learn all that is to be learned for the promotion of good farming, good roads, good schools and contented homes. Such a medium "Farm and Family" proposes to be.

It seems that the time is ripe and ready for the launching of a magazine which will give to the farmer, his wife and his children a new idea of the education which goes beyond the school out into everyday life and makes it amply worth while.

"Farm and Family" will be published by the Louisville Courier-Journal Company, in its modern printing plant at Third and Green streets, Louisville, Ky. The initial number will contain 24 or more quarto pages, and the price will be 25 cents a year.

To fill out the unexpired subscriptions at present paid-in-advance Weekly readers, the Saturday issue of the Daily Courier-Journal will be sent, in addition to "Farm and Family." — Courier-Journal.

GOD OUR PATTERN IN GIVING GIFTS

Every Good and Perfect Gift
Comes From Above.

The Pleasure of Giving—God the Great Exemplar—He Giveth All Things Richly to Be Enjoyed—Every Good and Every Perfect Gift—Gifts to Angels—Gifts to Men—Gifts to the Saints—Gifts to Sinners Also.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Louisville, Ky., December 21.—Of Pastor Russell's two discourses here today, we report that on the text, "Every good and every perfect gift is from Above, and cometh down from the Father of Lights, in whom there is no variableness nor shadowing of turning."—James 1:17.

In many respects, said the Pastor, Christmas is a delightful season. Admitting that it is the date of the Annunciation, and that our Lord's birth was in the following October, nevertheless it is a delightful custom that calls attention to the birth at Bethlehem, and memorializes God's great gift on our behalf. The custom of giving little tokens of esteem is still a blessing to the world. To the extent that we enter into it heartily, we are exercising a godlike quality.

Some of God's Gifts.

The Pastor then enumerated some of the common gifts which God has given all men to enjoy richly. The air we breathe, the refreshing water, the golden sunshine, the beauties of nature—animate and inanimate—he described in glowing terms. These gifts are all from the Father of Mercies.

All these are blessings notwithstanding our fallen condition, our weaknesses of mind and body, which hinder proper appreciation. When we recall that the sick lose appetite and fail to appreciate, and when we remember that humanity is sin-sick, we may well wonder how much more a perfect man might have enjoyed these blessings, which are still precious to us.

Richly to Enjoy.

The Pastor then showed that although God's gifts are on every hand, yet the majority of people receive them in a stupid, unappreciative manner, unconscious of their blessings. He also demonstrated that this is the result of sin, which has vitiated every good quality of mind and body. From the Scriptures he proved that the world, through losing relationship to God, has lost the sense of appreciation of many of God's gifts. Consequently mankind are unhappy, unloved, unthankful, seeking pleasure and happiness, but finding instead discontent and disappointment.

The speaker went on to demonstrate that only one class are really able to enjoy Heaven's gifts highly. These have passed through a certain mental experience, which is transforming their life. They have caught a glimpse of the Almighty, and have learned that all these gifts are of His bestowing. They gave their hearts to the Lord, and received new hearts in return. With these, old things have become new. They are indeed New Creatures, begotten of the Holy Spirit, through the Word of Truth.

God's Unspeakable Gift.

St. Paul's exclamation, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift!" the Pastor said, refers to the gift of God's dear Son to be man's Redeemer. The death sentence passed upon Adam by the Supreme Court of the Universe could not be revoked; and that sentence included all of Adam's posterity. If an unblemished human life could be substituted for his, the majesty of the Divine Law could stand, and Adam and his race might be granted a fresh trial for life or death everlasting. But no such perfect man existed; and had there been one, who knows whether he would have been willing to sacrifice his life and all its prospects?

The Pastor quoted many Scriptures showing that God has a gracious Plan for man's salvation; and that when He presented it to His Son, the Son willingly and gladly co-operated. As we read, "For the joy set before Him, [He] endured the cross, despising the shame, and is now [as a reward] set down at the right hand of the Throne of God"—awaiting the glories of the Millennium and of eternity.

Gifts to the Church.

God's time has not yet come for giving the blessings of the Redeemer's sacrifice to the world, said the Pastor. The distribution of those gifts will be during the Thousand Year-Door of Jubilee. Meantime God has been preparing gifts for a special class of humanity. This class He is now selecting from amongst all nations and denominations. To these He gives spiritual gifts—new hearts of appreciation, new eyes of understanding, new powers of spiritual enjoyment.

Then the speaker showed that the value of a gift lies in the love and fellowship of which it is a reminder. Daily each should shed on life's pathway gifts bringing cheer—kind words and looks, the nod of recognition, acts of sympathy. These gifts mean much to the groaning creation.

Sheriff's Sale.

Stevens for $156.86 and 60 cts. cost, I, or one of my deputies, will on Monday the 5th day of January, 1914, between the hours of 1 o'clock p. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., at the Courthouse door in Hartford, Ohio county, Kentucky, expose to public sale, to the highest bidder, the following described property, (or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the plaintiff's debt interest and cost), to-wit:

HOUSEKEEPERS Must be Watchful

For great efforts are being made in this vicinity to sell baking powders of inferior class, made from alum acids and lime phosphates, both undesirable to those who require high-grade cream of tartar baking powder to make clean and healthful food.

The official Government tests have shown Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful, grape cream of tartar baking powder, of highest strength, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world.
